A driver who is a national of a non-EU member country and who is employed by an Irish-registered haulage operator must have a Driver Attestation form if they are employed to transport goods while using a Community Licence.

The Driver Attestation shall state that the driver is employed in the haulage operator's Member State in accordance with the laws, regulations, administrative provisions or collective agreements applicable in that Member State, on conditions of employment and of vocational training of drivers to carry out road transport operations in that State.

The Driver Attestation shall belong to the haulage operator who will ensure that it is at the disposal of the designated driver when that driver operates a vehicle using a Community Licence issued to the haulage operator. A certified true copy of the Driver Attestation shall be kept at the haulage operator's premises. The original Driver Attestation must be kept in the vehicle and must be produced by the driver whenever required by an authorised inspecting officer.

The Driver Attestation shall be valid only as long as the conditions under which it was issued are satisfied. If those conditions are no longer met or if the driver leaves the haulage operator's employment, the employer must return both copies of the Driver Attestation to the Road Transport Operator Licensing Unit immediately.
